all over the world. On the last day of the event, the young participants come together to form a draft resolution. Although the conference did put the delegates to test, delegate dinner, socials, live performances and the grand gala dinner ensured they were fairly awarded for their hard work.

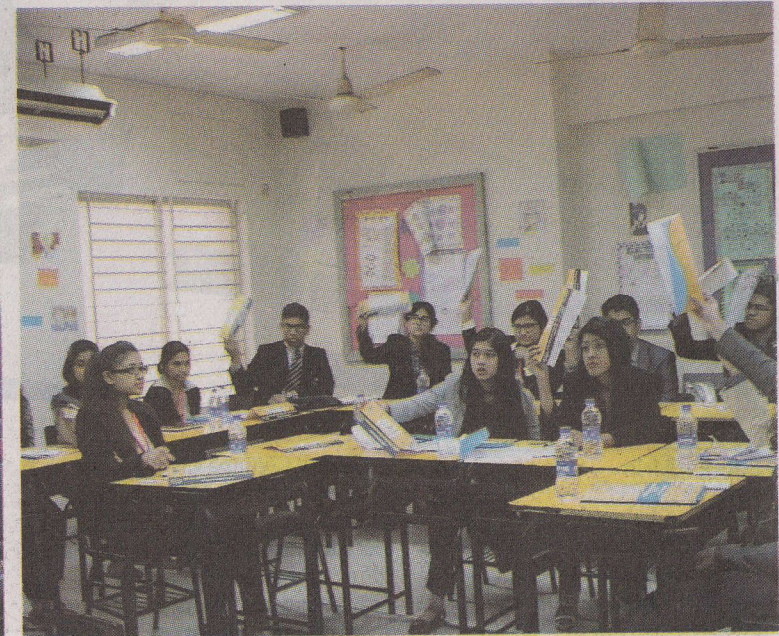

Numerous guest appearances were made at the event. Former ambassador of Bangladesh Dr M Afsarul Qader and Editor-in-chief of Dhaka Tribune Zafar Sobhan were present as the Chief Guest and Special Guest respectively during the opening ceremony. Social media savant Solaiman Shukhon, Ishmum Ahmed Chowdhury campus ambassador at Teach for Bangladesh Next Digital Explorer gave motivational speeches.

After spending these three days surrounded by the sharpest minds of the country, Scholastica Model United Nations, through its central theme "A World Without Borders" sought to teach the young delegates unity and the resolution of disputes through peaceful negotiation. These future ambassadors, political figures and world leaders left the conference more informed, more knowledgeable and most importantly, more aware. ● Yesterday was the conclusion of the three-day Scholastica Model United Nations Session II, which started with the participation of 550 delegates from 35 schools on December 26. Scholastica Senior Campus Uttara successfully hosted the groundbreaking conference, which was not only the first conference to bring General Assembly VI (Legal) as a committee but also the first conference in Bangladesh to be able to boast 15 stunning committees for delegates to choose from.

Delegates from all over the country flocked to Scholastica's Senior Section Campus in Uttara to participate in this event where they debated and discussed global issues as they took on the roles of representatives of countries from
